Paying for your benefits

Your share of the cost for your benefits is normally deducted from your pay automatically. If you're on an approved short-term disability claim while on an extended leave, it will, in most cases, be automatically deducted from your short-term disability benefit payment which will be issued through the Walmart payroll system. To keep your benefits coverage, you may need to make payments to Walmart People Services by phone or mail.

If you're an hourly associate working in California, Hawaii, New Jersey, New York, or Rhode Island and have an approved short-term disability claim, your short-term disability payment will not be issued through the Walmart payroll system. You'll be responsible to pay for your benefits directly via phone or by mail:
